Dean Ryan can perform all aspects of civil and transportation engineering. From street widening to a complex mass transit or interstate corridor improvement project, our professional staff can take your project from inception of planning and environmental studies through detailed design for expressways, highways, streets, bridges, large port facilities and airports.

Our 25 years of public agency experience means that Dean Ryan understands the complexity of project implementation and the need for efficient, innovative, cost-effective, and excellent service and communication from a consultant. Dean Ryan has built our reputation on providing a quality service meeting those criteria. We work together with each client to understand the specific project issues, identify all stakeholders and reach intelligent and innovative solutions leading to a well-designed and constructable project.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Experienced Staff

Our experienced civil and transportation engineers provide full life-cycle capabilities, including planning, design, consulting, engineering, and design-build capabilities to clients engaged in civil construction projects throughout the Western United States. Our interdisciplinary teams work independently or as an extension of agency staff. We also have extensive environmental planning, green engineering and flood defense capabilities.

Efficient and Effective Management

Dean Ryan has managed multi-million dollar projects on-time and within budget, earning several “Excellent” performance ratings. We have won engineering achievement awards for technical innovation and excellent approach to the successful accomplishment of complex projects with minimal impact on concurrent operations and the community. Each client is served by a Dean Ryan account focus team, headed by a Senior Client Manager. All activities are conducted with approved plans, budgets, and timetables. Our success is due to our close involvement with each client, our 25 years of practical experience, and our understanding and focus on the exact needs of each client.
